A week-long salute to the nation's giant chemistry industry got under way last Monday with the official beginning of Chemistry Progress Week.

Here in Torrance, with Shell, Stauffer, and Dow operating huge facilities here and Carbide and Carbon Chemicals building a huge plant here, observance of Chemistry Week has been officially noted by city and industrial leaders.

Growth of the sixth ranking national industry has been especially pronounced in Southern California where 113 companies employ more than 17,000 persons and do an annual gross business of half a billion dollars.

Theme of the week's observance is "A Better America Through Chemical Progress. The week has been originated to tell the world how chemistry constantly is making life more healthful and enjoyable by continually creating new and better things for every need.

Observance in the Southland has been marked with factory tours, open house days, plant exhibits, showing of industry motion pictures, and other events.
